- Project Implementation/Success to date:

Having only received my Smartboard in March during the week before Spring Break my immediate focus for implementation was in achievement test preparation. I have used it every day as an exciting change from the overhead projector as we practice items that have been retired from previous achievement tests taken from the State Department of Education's website. After the April 17th and 18th test is over, I will focus on the Priority Academic Student Skills (PASS) media objectives of composing visual messages as stated in my grant proposal. Although none of my students are as yet proficient in composing visual messages, my final progress report should reflect that I have met 100% of my goals.

- Feedback from Students/Parents:

The students are so excited about the new Smartboard! I wish you could have seen their reactions when it was delivered. Several of the boys spontaneously fell down on their knees and began worshipping the Smartboard, praising with their voices, and raising their hands, etc. ☺ We have used it for many lessons at Brainpop.com just to appease their interest. If I have a paper and pencil lesson that needs to be done for a grade, it never fails that students will ask me if we are using the Smartboard today. Thanks so much for funding the grant and affording Newcastle students this wonderful educational opportunity!
